From The Church

Dear Friends

Traditionally November is a month of Remembrance. This begins with All Saint's Day when we remember all who those we know have died during the previous 12 months. Next, we have Remembrance, the opportunity, year on year, to remember the fallen. When I think of war and remembrance, I think of all the heroes, all those men and women who laid down their lives. A hero of mine, particularly as a former nurse myself, is Edith Cavell, a Hospital Matron. At the outbreak of the First World War Edith quickly headed back to Brussels where she had previously been teaching nurses, explaining to her family that this was where she would be most use. Even when the city was under siege, occupied by the German troops she remained at her post, helping wounded British soldiers to get better and eventually escape back to England, even returning some of them back to fight on the front line. It was this effort which cost her life. She was shot by the firing squad on October 11th 1915.

This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends. John Chapter 15 verses 12 and 13

Edith is often referred to as a modern martyr, Edith knew her own hero, Jesus Christ as her personal saviour, she knew that she was facing death and that there was no place for resentment in her heart, this is what she told her chaplain the night before she died:

"Standing as I do in view of God and eternity, I realise that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness towards anyone."

She understood that what she had done was wrong, yet she had continued to preserve life and soon she would stand before God, forgiven, so she knew she also had to forgive.

Just as for Nurse Edith Cavell, as Christians, our ultimate hero is Jesus, some of our heroes may be the ones who remind us of him, the ones who are willing to lay down their lives for their friends.

But, Jesus blows the standards when it comes to heroes. He is unique. He is supreme. He is different. Different in the same way that a candle is different from the sun. They both may give off light but that is where the comparison ends.

Faced with her own imminent death, Edith understood the hope of heaven.

'No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends'

Jesus has conquered death for us all, by dying on the cross, reconciling us to God and then rising to be with his Father in glory.

Because of that, as Christians we have the promise of eternal life.

With every blessing,

Jane (Vicar of the Red Post Churches)

EXTREME FORAGING - by Boldngrey

In the October edition of the 'Bridge' Mel Fermor wrote a delightful article about foraging that struck a chord with me. I am a lifelong forager, but not just in the sense that Mel describes . In my lifetime I have taken it to new levels.

I am a 'Baby Boomer' born when food was rationed and everything was in short supply. The enormous gardens of Churchill Close bear witness to the fact that all families grew their own vegetables. Foraging was an essential means of supplementing our modest diet.

Blackberrying was our family's favourite activity. On one occasion, my six-foot father was reaching for the juiciest blackberries on the highest bramble, just as Mel remembers it. He felt a sharp prick in his foot, quickly followed by a second intense stab of pain. Looking down at his sandals, he saw an adder scurrying away.

He drove like Stirling Moss to Salisbury Infirmary where he received a massive shot of anti-biotics and painkillers. He then drove us all sedately home, nursing a feeling if intense nausea and a headache that would have felled a buffalo.

Dad also followed Mel's example and spoiled 'Mother's Ruin' with sloes that he had foraged. Other wines were brewed from scratch. Rhubarb wine and potato wine came from his garden and elderberry from the hedgerow. On Monday mornings we would go to school, backs aching and fingers stained from foraging for the thousands of flower heads needed for dandelion wine.

In the spring of 1956 we picnicked on Salisbury Plain, surrounded by nodding cowslips. My father, my elder sister and I filled bags with them. Mother was excused picking as she was so heavily pregnant and could only sit on a rug and take off the stems. My younger sister was born that May. The wonderful, golden cowslip wine that resulted was his greatest brew and he carefully saved the last bottle to crack in celebration on her twenty-first birthday – sheer nectar. Today cowslips are protected so this would not be possible.

The field with the best mushrooms was always a closely guarded secret. Now, sadly, weed killers have made field mushrooms a rarity and I've yet to follow the current fashion of foraging for fungi. I wouldn't want to risk a psychedelic moment at my age.

It was my mother who introduced me to advanced level foraging, extending the skills involved to other areas of life. Her foraging regularly took her to jumble sales where she would find armfuls of treasure. 'You'll grow to fit it' is a phrase that still sends shivers down my spine. Millennials should search Google for 'jumble sale'.

Newly married, I honed my urban foraging skills. Our first home was in Woolwich where stocking our larder meant foraging in the local Tesco. I was alarmed to discover that my new wife and I approached this simple task differently. We strolled the aisles together seeking offers, but she would only buy the items needed on carefully composed list. Shopping bored me, so I would stack the trolley with bargains. If it was cheap, you bought lots and avoided shopping again for a long time. It was the start of my belief that there is more to life than the middle isle of Lidl.

When I borrowed a membership card for a local cash and carry our eyes widened at the cheap prices, so we filled our trolleys with super economy, battalion sized packs. Seduced by the absence of VAT on the labels we maxed out the Barclaycard in one swift visit. Back home buyer's remorse set in with a vengeance as we gazed in horror at the quantity we had bought. True, we didn't need cornflakes or Andrex for many months, but in my enthusiasm we had over-purchased several items in massive quantities. I have guilty memories of a forty-eight pack of Windolene which for many years was given generously to friends and neighbours at every opportunity. In fact, we may still have a few if anyone is interested.

Ever after, our family's weekly shop became a female sport. In forty-five years of married life, I can count on my fingers the number of times we have done the Tesco run together and it suits us both fine (I think!).

Where we did forage successfully together was at auctions. These were the days of DIY, stripped pine and Laura Ashley (wince) and I became an advanced level forager. With my modest wood working ability and my wife's excellent sewing and upholstery skills we made a good team.

Our pinnacle was the restoration of a drop ended settee and easy chairs. My task, securing the wooden frame etc, was straight forward, but re-upholstering became a never-ending saga. Slaves to traditional methods and material, we needed to replace much of the original stuffing so we salvaged two smelly horse hair mattresses. The hair was soaked in the bath, sewn into pillow cases and put in the washing machine. It was then dried, tumbled and teased-out, a process that took weeks. The current tenants of that house are probably still digging horse hair from every plug hole. The finished product was excellent, but there was a tacit agreement that it would never be repeated.

The advent of boot fairs and eBay heralded the start of my time as an extreme forager as it provided openings to sell my better foraging bargains. It was a carousel of opportunities: buy at boot fairs and sell on eBay, buy on eBay and sell at auction, buy at auction and sell at boot fairs. It was great fun - a mildly addictive treasure hunt, always seeking the elusive find that might net a fortune.

Retirement has caused a slowdown. I gaze at the shelves in my shed, groaning with fifty years of foraged items that 'might come in handy one day', and know that reconciliation is needed. Am I entering a de-foraging phase? Should I stop?

Just a minute, look at the time! Middleditch is having a sale today. No time to waste, I must fly.

Perhaps on the way home I can forage some blackberries. Mel would approve of that.

... On Tuesday I see my therapist.

Nature's Voice

Have you ever spotted these funny little furballs clinging to wild roses and wondered why they are there? The robin's pincushion, as its commonly known, is an example of symbiosis or a close relationship between two organisms where at least one benefits. In this case, it is a type of gall wasp that lays its eggs on wild rose, causing the rose's tissue to react in these funny swellings. The gall wasp larvae live inside the swelling, or gall, feeding on the plant material inside through the winter, before emerging as adults in the spring. Pretty clever! The gall wasp is a parasite, but the dog rose is left pretty unharmed in spite of being used as an out of season Insect. Airbnb!

There are loads of these funny relationships across the natural world. We tend to think of parasites with a bit of a shudder and a sudden urge to wash your hair, but it's actually a pretty clever way of ensuring a species continues. Sometimes, rather than acting as a parasite, two species will coexist in a way that benefits both at the same time — this is called mutualism. You might have noticed that where there are aphids, there are often also ants. The aphids secrete a sugary liquid called honeydew, which the ants eat, and the ants, in turn, offer protection to the aphids, sometimes even storing their larvae underground and guarding them (and enjoying their sweet stickiness like a mini dairy farm!)

There are lots of different parasitic wasps in the UK – and most of them look nothing like the yellow and black wasps that we widely recognise. Ever spotted little circular bumps on the underside of an oak leaf? That's a gall wasp's eggs! Or the ridged and wrinkled acorns that look completely different from their brothers and sisters? Another gall wasp! So look out for the crazy shapes of the robin's pincushion and imagine the little creatures grubbing inside them. There are hundreds at Badbury Rings right now.

Kingston Lacy Estate News

Staff and volunteers had a great day supporting Shapwick's Autumn fete at the beginning of October, organised by The Old School Nursery. We set up the apple pressing equipment in the orchard, as well as autumn crafts and an autumn animal orchard trail. Children loved cranking the handle to see the apple juice coming out, and have a taste of fresh juice, and it was lovely to see so many people from the local community enjoying the orchards. Well done to Natalie from The Old School Nursery for doing such a great job organising.

Eye Bridge has also been a focus for staff recently, with the conclusion of a research collaboration with University of Exeter (UoE) to understand better: I) how people make use of parts of the Trust's lowland estates that are freely accessible to the public, and 2) how these sites might be managed differently in future. The team ran sessions and conducted interviews with children and young people from QE School, in order to explore how young people use Eye Bridge, so that the site can be managed in a more sustainable way. We ended the project with a pond dipping session, and the UoE team will be presenting the research findings to the Kingston Lacy and wider LLE teams in the coming weeks. This information will be really useful in supporting the management plans for Eye Bridge in the years to come and ensuring that young people can still enjoy this beautiful place for years to come.

One recent wildlife spot by the rangers at Bishops Court farm was a white-tailed eagle, Britain's largest bird of prey. Keen birdwatchers will know there has been a programme of relocations of this astonishing species from Scotland to the Isle of Wight in recent years, with regular sightings in Poole harbour, but the changes at Bishops Court have seen a big increase in small mammals that are a key part of the eagles' diet. Hopefully Bishops Court will become a regular hunting ground for these and other raptors.

English Usage by Michael Evans

Too many words?

Our daily conversation and many written notices contain superfluous words as if we might not fully understand if they were not added to simpler phrases. The craze for putting "pre" before many words puzzles me. We don't have to book a ticket, but we must "pre-book" or even "pre-book it in advance!" The use of "pre" occurs also when the media report something as a "pre-planned operation" instead of just "planned," which surely means before the event in question without the "pre.".

Other examples of superfluous words are

"Where are you going to?" for "Where are you going"?

"He is going to meet up with the president" for "he is going to meet the president. "

"We did that up until last year" for "We did that until last year."

"It was a free gift" for" it was free" for "it was a gift"

"You can get it for free" for "you can get it free".

"The reason why" came from the poem "The charge of the light brigade" for poetic scansion, but in everyday language it is enough to say "I know the reason" or "I know why."

I'm not saying that anything is wrong with those expressions, but I do wonder why language is subject to inflation as much as the economy.

I am sure you are fed up with the mention of wet weather, and very little sunshine but unfortunately that does seem to be the normal state of affairs. It has also been quite chilly at times, which in a way I do not mind as much because it is usually means sunshine and clear blue skies. If you are worried about flooding please do visit the GOV.UK website to see the current flood warnings, view river and sea levels or check the 5-day flood risk forecast:

https://check-for-flooding.service.gov.uk/target-area/IIIWAFSTOM or call Floodline on 0345 988 1188 using quick-dial code: 210033.

We urgently need volunteers to come forward to join the Speedwatch team in the village. We have lost a few members, and we need at least 6 participants to take this forward, or else will have to consider the viability of the group which is a great shame. We get a lot of complaints from Parishioners regarding speed and we have tried to get the Speedwatch team going but we are just not getting the support. If you feel you would be able to give time to help with this, please do contact the Parish Clerk, details are on the web site mentioned above.

A gentle reminder that the Citizens Advice Bus will be stopping at Sturminster Marshall Memorial Hall on Wednesday 13th November between 10am and 12pm. If you have any worries or problems, please do go along and speak to one of their friendly advisers.

Remembrance Sunday is also here again, and a short service will be taking place at the War Memorial on Sunday 10^{th} November.

Southern Gas Network are going to start work on the crossroads on the A350/Station Road/Dullar Lane Junction and the proposed start date as we go to print is Monday 18th November 2024 for 4 weeks. Please keep a look out on the Parish Website and social media for any updates regarding this work. All households should have received a leaflet explaining the works.

It is that time of year again when we will be looking at setting budgets for the next financial year. This is a very important task as we need to make sure we have enough funds for any projects, maintenance and unexpected costs, especially in the current economic climate with a lot of main Councils experiencing funding shortfalls. An update from Dorset Waste Partnership; cartons and foil can now be put in the recycling bin, which is an improvement, instead of Landfill.

IF YOU DON'T NEED MY SERVICES YOU ALMOST CERTAINLY KNOW SOMEBODY WHO DOES!

WHY SHOULD I MAKE A LASTING POWER OF ATTORNEY?

You should make provision in advance for the possibility of you becoming incapable of managing your own financial and welfare affairs during your lifetime....this could be because of dementia or a stroke or an accident causing brain damage.

If you don't have Lasting Powers of Attorney in place the Court of Protection may appoint people to manage your affairs, but the procedure is VERY COSTLY and time-consuming. More importantly, you will have lost the right for you to choose who will have the responsibility for looking after your affairs at a time when it is vital that they are dealt efficiently & sympathetically; and by somebody who knows you!

Property and Financial Affairs LPA

These are designed for you to appoint attorneys to make a range of decisions including the buying and selling of your house and other assets, dealing with your tax affairs, operating bank and building society accounts and claiming benefits on your behalf. These can be used at your direction whilst you are still mentally capable and also by the Attorneys if you lack mental capacity to make these decisions.

Health & Welfare LPA

Attorneys appointed under this document can make decisions relating to your living accommodation and care, consenting to or refusing medical treatment on your behalf, and on day-to-day matters such as diet and dress. This LPA can only be used if you have lost the mental capacity to make decisions for yourself.

Fees

Because my overheads are much lower MY FIXED FEES are usually lower than those charged by local solicitors who usually charge on an hourly basis.....so you never know the cost until you get the bill!

Convenience

You do not have to make two or more visits to a local solicitor instead (at no extra charge) I can visit you and I am contactable by phone 9am-7pm...7 days a week!

Experience

In addition to being a retired local solicitor with over 45 years' experience I have appropriate professional indemnity insurance for LPA/Wills/Probate work with a cover of up to £1,000,000 per case.

Contact me now for a friendly "jargon free" - "no obligation" initial chat to discuss your requirements.

Hearty Farmhouse Sausage Casserole

This is a very easy and tasty filling supper dish... It also uses up those yellow peppers usually left in the fridge!....

1 packet of 6 'nice sausages' your butchers made are usually the best but any type will do.

1x large or 2x smaller onions...chunky chopped.

1x Red Pepper chopped into 1" ish chunks.

1x Yellow Pepper chopped into 1" ish chunks.

1x large tin baked beans (400g)

1x large tin chopped tomatoes (400g)

Pop your sausages in the oven on a baking tray, or under the grill to cook through.

Put a splash of oil (Sunflower or Rapeseed) in a large saucepan, turn on a low-medium heat, add the chunky chopped onions and fry until turning soft.

Add the chunks of peppers, stir until turning slightly soft.

Add the tin of baked beans and chopped tomatoes, swill the cans out with an 1" or so of water... stir all together...cook for a few minutes.

Take your pre cooked sausages and cut into chunks of about 1"...add to the mixture.

Pop into a casserole dish and cook in the oven for about 20-30 mins.

This is lovely with boiled or new potatoes.....

If you like a bit more spicy, I often add garlic and a chilli
Enjoy!

WOMEN Sturminster Marshall Evening WI

Our September meeting was a Games Evening.

The evening started out with a quick game of Bingo with various prizes of chocolate bears, then onto a Beetle Drive with a prize for the highest overall table score and then to end the evening a few party type games.

Twenty-one of our members enjoyed the evening.

By the time you read this we will be fast approaching Christmas and as I have noted on the bottom of this article our Christmas party, before that we have been invited to take part in the Sturminster Marshall First School Harvest Assembly which is a good opportunity for us to meet the children of the village and we are all looking forward to this.

Our group take part in regular activities as we have a Skittle Group, we are currently playing in the Dorset Federation tournament, we also have a walking netball team and a few of our members play Croquet.

A few of us also took a trip with the Dorset Federation WI to Buckingham Palace this was another excellent outing, Buckingham Palace never disappoints.

As you can see, we have had a very full and interesting month. Thank you once again to everyone that makes this possible.

If you are interested in joining our WI group, you are very welcome. We meet on the Third Thursday of the month at 7.30pm in The Old School Hall opposite the Red Lion. See what we have to offer, nothing to pay at the start then if you like us a membership fee of £48 for the year.

Our next meeting on December the 12th will be our Christmas party to be held at Sturminster Marshall Golf Club.

Taking and Making Stock - by Lys de Bray

Last month I wrote about the Silver Willow - Salix repens 'Argernea' and as promised, here is a progress report . Towards the end of the month I had a good look at it, though my memory of its so-beautiful predecessor kept getting in the way. When my esteemed helper came to work that day I said: "I've- thought about the silver willow, it's got to go! Every time I look out of the window it looks worse, so out with it before I change my mind! Again! And when it's out, we'll have a good look at the roots." He said: "I scraped the trunk last week and that looked very healthy, do you really want it gone?

'Yes. You win some, you lose some. I can't understand it, I never had any problems with the first tree, and I liked I so much! I won't get another; because it would be several years before it flowered."

Saying that made me think about mortality generally and to cheer myself up I went to look at our pots of bulbs with their promise of spring, life and the year to come.

Recently I was doing something mechanical like washing up and the following pithy description popped into my head:

`Gardening is always -

Experiment

Effort

Error - and - Elation!

And the sun's just come out!

More cheering because the garden doesn't t look so Novemver-ish. Take the wheelbarrow and a good handful of short canes to mark things. I've just had an idea - if you're blessed with bamboos yielding an abundance of canes, cut some into short lengths and paint the tops of some of them red to move elsewhere, blue to leave where it is, yellow to split and make more of a display with and purple to split and grow on for charity sales. Stick them in where appropriate and you'll save a lot of time (and they're reusable; of course)

Nature has obligingly put paid to most of the herbaceous stuff; and it's up to you to finish the job. If a plant has done what you hoped, make a note and pass on. If, on the other hand, something hasn't been a success, out with it. I'm minded of the Red Queen,in 'Alice Through the Looking-Glass' / 'Alice in Wonderland' who shouted - 'Off with his head!'
